

365
DEVOTIONS
— for —
CATHOLICS

DAILY MOMENTS WITH GOD

Creative Communications for the Parish
1564 Fencorp Drive
Fenton, MO 63026
www.creativecommunications.com

365 Devotions for Catholics: Daily Moments with God was compiled by Terence Hegarty and Paul Pennick for Creative Communications for the Parish, 1564 Fencorp Drive, Fenton, MO 63026. 800-325-9414.

www.livingfaith.com
www.creativecommunications.com

ISBN: 978-1-68279-130-1

Cover photo: Shutterstock.com
Cover design: Lindsey Galvin

Copyright © 2016 Creative Communications for the Parish, a Division of Bayard, Inc. All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced in any manner without prior written permission of the publisher.

Scripture texts in this work are taken from the New American Bible with Revised New Testament and Revised Psalms © 1991, 1986, 1970 Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, Washington, DC, and are used by permission of the copyright owner. All rights reserved. No part of the New American Bible may be reproduced in any form without permission in writing from the copyright owner.

Printed in the U.S.A.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction	7
A Prayer of St. Paul.....	9
January.....	10
February	41
March	69
April.....	100
May	130
June	161
July.....	191
August.....	222
September.....	253
October.....	283
November.....	314
December.....	344
Prayers.....	375

INTRODUCTION

This is the day the LORD has made;
let us be glad and rejoice in it. Psalm 118:24

Words have power. They influence our thoughts, our emotions and our actions. A talented novelist can make us laugh or cry. An investigative journalist reporting on injustices can make us angry. But no words have more power than the Word of God. And no person is more powerful than Jesus, the Word Made Flesh.

By gifting us with his word, God invites us every day to walk with him, to seek him and to constantly better ourselves. In the pages that follow, you will find inspiring, challenging and thought-provoking devotions to accompany you each day of the entire year.

By reflecting on God's word, we can come to enjoy a greater prayer life and deepen our relationship with God, creating a bond that transcends language and logic. With 365 Devotions for Catholics, our Living Faith: Daily Catholic Devotions authors are hoping that their everyday experiences—their joys, their sorrows, their struggles—can help readers on their own journey with God. What you will find here are some of the very best reflections that have appeared in the pages of Living Faith over the last several years.

As Catholics, we count the 40 days of Lent in anticipation of the joy of Easter, we count the 28 days of Advent and the number of shopping days until Christmas. Some count the days until their retirement.

But in all of that “counting down,” let us take a few moments daily, through these devotions, to remember that each day is a gift. A day should not be something to simply count down or get through. It is precious—every single day that we are granted life is sacred. Every day, every hour, every minute, every second is a gift from God.

Let this book serve as a tangible reminder that what we do with our time really does matter—every day.

Enjoy the journey!

Terence Hegarty
Editor, Living Faith: Daily Catholic Devotions

A PRAYER OF ST. PAUL

I kneel before the Father, from whom every family in heaven and on earth is named, that he may grant you in accord with the riches of his glory to be strengthened with power through his Spirit in the inner self, and that Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith; that you, rooted and grounded in love, may have strength to comprehend with all the holy ones what is the breadth and length and height and depth, and to know the love of Christ that surpasses knowledge, so that you may be filled with all the fullness of God...to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus to all generations, forever and ever. Amen.

Ephesians 3:14-19, 21

‘IN MEMORY OF ME’

I remember the deeds of the LORD. Psalm 77:12

If you're looking for a life-changing biblical verse to grab on to, here it is. Do this, and your life will surely be different.

To remember what God has done—his creating, his saving, his sending the Spirit—is to view our life in the context of reality. Only then can we see our way forward. If we forget what God has done, we neglect reality; inevitably, we go astray.

How do we remember? Above all, we remember in the Mass. Not simply a remembering of a past event, the Mass is the great remembering in which Christ's sacrifice again becomes present to us. We remember that God has created us, that he has sent his Son to us, that his Son has given his life for us and for all. But we each need our own ways of remembering. For the psalmist, it is a matter of meditating and pondering (Psalm 77:13).

What means will you or I use today to remember the deeds of the Lord?

Kevin Perrotta

SHARING THE WEALTH TODAY

But God said to him, “You fool, this night your life will be demanded of you; and the things you have prepared, to whom will they belong?” Luke 12:20

Who doesn't sympathize with the man who wanted to hoard his harvest to enjoy later? We've heard time and again of the need to save for the future.

But God also calls us to live in the present. Thinking you'll volunteer every week at a homeless shelter once the kids are out of the house? Volunteer an hour or two a month now. Thinking you'll spend an hour a day in prayer once you retire? Pray ten minutes on the way to work or the grocery store today.

The plans we make for the future have a way of being turned on their heads. Let's resolve to share our gifts responsibly and as fully as possible today rather than waiting for “someday.”

Lord, help me be present to your will today and every day.

Melanie Rigney

NOTICING GOODNESS

He must increase; I must decrease. John 3:30

This line of John the Baptist about Jesus can serve as powerful spiritual direction for us in these times that are significantly challenging for many, whether with economic and employment crises or with the other strains and losses of daily living. It is easy to be overwhelmed with the difficulties, constantly working the problems, feeling the fear close in. “He must increase; I must decrease” could be a mantra, as we deliberately focus in this moment on the immediate presence of God’s saving love rather than turning our attention in dread to the threat of what frightens us.

What helps me the most to do this is to try to notice any aspect of goodness right here in this moment—anything beautiful or peaceful or delicious or interesting or encouraging or kind. Noticing goodness makes my awareness of God’s presence increase and my fear-gripped sense of self decrease.

Beloved God, please help me to live increasingly in trust, knowing ever more deeply that you are right here with me now and always.

Patricia Livingston

TRUE SATISFACTION

They all ate and were satisfied. Mark 6:42

We're in the week of rude awakenings. Our lives are getting back to normal after thanksgiving, Advent, Christmas and New Year's. Many of us spent too much money trying to fill emotional and physical holes with family and friends. Now we've found the holes are still there, along with new ones in our bank accounts. No matter how noble or selfless our intentions, excess in this world doesn't satisfy long-term.

The disciples despaired at the cost of feeding the crowd, saying they'd need 200 days of wages. And yet, they learned that with Christ, five loaves and two fish were more than sufficient.

As we work on resolutions to spend, eat and drink less, may we also resolve to trust more in the Master's love, which feeds and satisfies like nothing else.

Lord, I praise your name. True satisfaction begins and ends with you.

Melanie Rigney

WHEN ENOUGH IS ENOUGH

What profit is there for one to gain the whole world yet lose or forfeit himself? Luke 9:25

It's possible to accumulate so much of "the world" that you lose your own "self." We expend so much time, effort and psychic energy trying to fortify our lives with the things of this world; we would do well to be on guard that we don't gain too much of this stuff. We live in the world, of course, and everyone has a right to food, clothing, shelter, education, rest and restful recreation, personal safety and so forth. But it's possible to get to a point where these things smother our deepest and truest selves.

So be careful that you don't gain too much of a good thing. In this new year, pray for the wisdom to recognize when enough is enough. As long as there are people who don't have anywhere near enough, of course, there will always be opportunities to share because nobody deserves too much of a good thing.

Lord Jesus, help me see when enough is enough.

Mitch Finley

BEING REBORN

Let your kindness comfort me, according to your promise to your servants. Psalm 119:76

Being born occurs throughout our lives. We emerge from darkness many times. Like that first trip through the birth canal, we never make it on our own. We come from mothers and lots of others. Self-creation is the myth; everyone needs a push and prayer to reach the light. When we cannot see the way ahead, a word may find us. Groans give way to gratitude. Compassion is real. The unfolding of a life pauses at death and then moves onward.

Being here is the gift, but it's not always apparent. We fall down. Someone must be to blame, and perhaps it is God. We can dig ourselves in deep before we remember to look up. Every pit opens to the sky.

We wanted to have it all, and we failed. But it's surprising how well what is broken catches the light. God, bring me to life in the spirit of compassion.

Jeanne Schuler

PAYING HOMAGE TO GOD

On entering the house they saw the child with Mary his mother. They prostrated themselves and did him homage.

Matthew 2:11

A cherished Christmas tradition in our family was my father's reading aloud to us Henry Van Dyke's haunting story, The Other Wise Man. I have never forgotten the message of that tale of the fourth Magi, Artaban. He was to journey with the others, following the great star to pay homage to the King. On his way to meet their caravan, he stops to care for a dying stranger by the road. When he reaches the meeting place, they have left without him.

For thirty-three years he wanders, searching, feeling he has failed. In all his travels, he finds people needing rescue, healing, comfort, food, shelter. As he is dying, a tender voice assures him that whatever he did for the least of these, he did for the One he sought.

We, like Artaban, do not see the actual epiphany of the Divine. But on all the pathways of our journey, we meet and do him homage in our moments of compassion: feeding the hungry, caring for the sick, reading children stories that touch their hearts forever.

Patricia Livingston

WORDS THAT LAST

Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away. Mark 13:31

Spoken twenty centuries ago, the words of Jesus have not passed away. They have been passed along from one generation to the next, from one country to another. His words have instructed millions in the ways of holiness, inspired the discouraged and consoled those who have faced pains and sorrows. Jesus can offer the eternal guarantee that his words will not pass away because he will not pass away. His words are the good news that neither time can diminish nor death destroy.

Some day earth and sky will disappear. The sun will make its last delivery of heat and light. The remnants of our beautiful planet will turn into stellar dust, but the words of the Lord will still exist. They promise life beyond comprehension, happiness beyond imagination and eternal security in the great beyond.

We praise you, Lord, for your words give us spirit and life.

Fr. James McKarns

OUR STREAM OF LIFE-GIVING WATER

Blessed is the man who trusts in the LORD...
He is like a tree planted beside the waters that stretches out its roots to the stream. Jeremiah 17:7-8

On our provincial house property, we have a huge oak tree estimated to be 300 years old. It towers so far above the other trees that you can't even see its top. Its trunk is so massive it takes about five adults with outstretched arms to encircle it. One secret to its longevity and size is the stream that runs nearby. This incredible tree has the good fortune of being rooted next to a generous supply of water.

What about us? Do we stay close to our “spiritual water supply,” that is, Scripture, the Eucharist, prayer, family, friends, nature and our loving service of others? If so, thank God! If not, what draws us away?

God, help me to stay rooted in you.

Sr. Melannie Svoboda, S.N.D.